North Carolina's Guide To Better Eating

PAUL'S RESTAURANT
BURLINGTON, N. C.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Welcome to North Carolina, the State that has everything a visitor could desire—from the seashore to the Sandhills to the majestic mountains of the west.

This is the State of hospitality . . . progressive State famous for its cultural, educational, industrial and agricultural attractions.

When you are traveling, and staying in one of our fine commercial or resort hotels or motels—whether you are from without the State or one of our own residents—get the most out of your trip by enjoying the superlative food and service at one of our Quality restaurants, cafeterias, dining rooms or drive-ins.

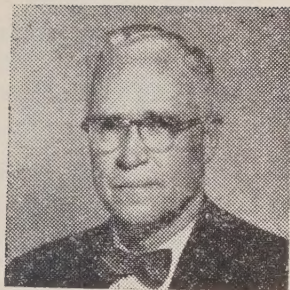

Under the Quality sign . . . and be sure to look for it . . . you will be served delicious and wholesome foods in the gracious and hospitable manner that has made North Carolina famous.

And for helpful information about any local point of interest, just ask the Quality restaurateur. You'll find him a tip-top host.

N. C. Association of Quality
Restaurants, Inc.

W. J. PAPPAS, President

NOTE: See Code on inside back cover.

The North Carolina Association of Quality Restaurants is performing a very real and appreciated service to the State by preparing and distributing NORTH CAROLINA'S GUIDE TO BETTER EATING, with revisions keeping this helpful booklet up-to-date.

The State Board of Health shares in the concern which you and your Association have for the quality, safety, economy and hospitality of our many fine public eating places. We have appreciated the excellent work of your Association and the harmonious cooperation we have received in all matters concerning the health of the State's citizens and also the health of the increasing number of guests who are coming in increasing numbers to enjoy North Carolina with us.

I hope that this Guide will supplement the many other efforts of your Association and those of the State Board of Health to assure constantly improving excellence in the wholesome and nutritious food provided by the public eating places. These establishments are even now doing a commendable job in dispensing hospitality and it will be a pleasure to continue to work in fellowship with your Association in the promotion of better nutrition and greater prosperity, health and happiness for all concerned.

Cordially yours,

J. W. R. Norton, M.D.
State Health Director

The love of good food is a prime incentive to travel. Many people will drive miles just for one meal at a place where they have experienced joyous eating, or have heard about from friends. If the experience is pleasant the customers will come again and again, and will tell others about it.

One unhappy experience of a meal poorly prepared and sloppily served will mean the loss of the present and many potential customers. Courteous service is of equal importance with good food.

That is why the Travel Council of North Carolina is cooperating with the State Department of Public Instruction, the State Board of Health, the Association of Quality Restaurants, and other agencies in conducting training school courses in the preparation and serving of foods in public eating places.

The Travel Council is acutely conscious of the fact that every restaurant customer is a "traveler." He or she may have traveled only a few blocks, maybe hundreds of miles. As a traveler he is entitled to the same courteous service of a healthful meal well prepared according to sanitation rules whether he comes from next door or from the ends of the earth.

As president of the Travel Council of North Carolina, I deem it a privilege to endorse the objectives of the Quality Restaurants Association to make the insignia "Hospitality and Good Food" applicable to every public eating place in the state.

Lynn Nisbet, Pres.

Travel Council of N. C.
